

Three farm schedule cards are shown, each containing detailed information about a farm and its operator's family. Each card is divided into several sections:

- Operator Information: Name, address, and farm details (e.g., acreage, crops, value of land and buildings).
- Production and Income: Details on farm products, value of production, and various types of income (e.g., from crops, livestock, interest).
- Assets and Liabilities: Information on additional land, farm equipment, and other assets, as well as debts and liabilities.
- Education and Expenses: Details on the education of family members and various household expenses.
- Inventory and Equipment: Lists of farm equipment, vehicles (trucks, tractors), and other household items.

The cards are filled with handwritten data, including names like 'S. M. P. E.', addresses, and numerical values representing various farm metrics. The layout is consistent across all three cards, with a header section at the top of each card containing classification codes for farm type and equipment.

FIGURE 2.—Three cards each representing a farm and farm family. All of the information used in the study concerning the farm and the operator's family is carried on one card.