

Generally, the value of maple sirup and sugar sold in these 36 States is quite small and comprises a very small part of the value of all farm products sold. However, it is possible that farmers and enumerators may have included the value of maple products sold in the value of all forest products sold, especially in a few areas where the production of maple sugar and sirup is important.

NA Not available.
<sup>1</sup> Includes the value of maple sirup and maple sugar sold but does not include farms reporting these sales.
<sup>2</sup> Not strictly comparable with other years as it probably includes some reports of firewood used on the farm.
<sup>6</sup> This value is included in "Value of other forest products sold," shown elsewhere in this table.
