<sup>3</sup>Data are not comparable due to difference in handling of reported sales.

Minnesota led with 18 percent of all turkeys sold in the country, and 43 percent of all turkeys sold in the North Central States; Missouri, also a North Central State, accounted for 16 percent. In the West, production has been centered primarily in California and Utah, where almost 16 percent of all turkeys were sold.

In the South, sales of turkeys in North Carolina, Arkansas, Texas, and Virginia made up 27 percent of all turkeys sold in the United States. Combined, Minnesota and California accounted for 31 percent of all turkey sales from farms with sales of $2,500 and over.

In 1969 and 1974, turkeys were not enumerated on farms having less than
